Work Of Club Shown
By the Members

Agreement has been reached by the membership of the Valley Country Club, that its constitution and bylaws shall remain as recently amended, to allow a club of 150 members instead of 100 as was the purpose when the club was organized and named many months ago.

The new constitution and bylaws was given its final reading before a well attended meeting of the Valley club held Monday night at the rooms of the Albany-Decatur chamber of commerce.

Aside from the adoption of the new regulations only routine business was transacted.

The meeting was presided over by Charles Rountree, president of the club. The report of the constitution and by laws committee was made by W. W. Fussell.

In speaking of some of the outstanding regulations of the club W. W. Fussell said: "We have five membership classifications. First regular memberships; second associate memberships; third junior memberships, fourth non-residence memberships and fifth, memberships for resident pastors."

It was explained that pastors would not be asked to pay initiation fees, but would be expected to pay the regular monthly dues.

Non-residents, who live without a radius of 35 miles are allowed some special consideration, with their memberships.

Junior members are the unmarried sons and daughters of club members, boys of club members being admitted, when properly recommended to the privileges of the club free.

Unmarried women of all ages who are the daughters of members are given the full privileges of membership. In addition to the regular stock owning members, a provision makes room for 50 associate members.

No dances are to be held at the club house, except those planned for by the club management.

Members are free to bring friends to the club and accord them every courtesy and privilege, except that the golf and tennis grounds are open to members only, locally speaking.

But when guests from a distance are at the club they are given the free use of the golf course and of the tennis courts.

New Mail Truck
Is Received Here

A new "burglar proof" mail truck, such as the federal government is now recommending for the parcel post service, has been received and put into service by Postmaster L. E. Huie of Albany.

The new truck is just a plain Ford at a glance; but examination gives it the characteristics of a "black Maria" so many precautions have been taken to keep all within the truck, once it is within.

The mail and parcels section is made of stout wire and locks secure the doors.

The postman who drives the car has a door near his seat leading into the "mail box" of the truck, but the rear door, is securely bolted.

Projected Treaty Will

LONG SESSION IS
TOTAL FAILURE

Conferees Are Unable To Agree On Article
Fourteen

(Associated Press)

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The negotiations between representatives of Great Britain and Soviet Russia have broken down and the projected treaty will not be signed, it was announced this morning by the foreign office.

The British and Russian delegations were in session all night until 7:15 o'clock this morning, the announcement said. The Soviet representatives were unable to accept the amendment and concessions offered in regard to article 14 of the draft treaty. No agreement could be reached it was stated, and the negotiations broke down.

The Anglo-Russian treaty negotiations collapsed, according to authoritative information, on the refusal of the Soviet representatives to accept an article in the agreement which they insisted left the way open for England eventually to demand compensation for foreign property nationalized by the Soviet government.

In other words, the explanation runs it was a flat clash between communism and capitalism, although there had been many evasive discussions of other features of Article 14 which the Russians found objectionable.

The Anglo-Russian conference in London was convened on April 14, following recognition of the Soviet regime by the labor government, under Premier McDonald.

LABOR IS NEUTRAL
ON DEFENSE DAY

(Associated Press)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 5.—Denouncing with impartial vehemence both militarism and pacifism, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor today refused to become involved in the national defense day controversy.

The attitude of the council toward national observance of the day will be one of strict neutrality. It is announced, however, that defense day is a matter of law and most labor men will feel that our military establishments may participate properly in the exercises.

Speaking for the council, Mathew Wolf, vice president of the A. F. O. L. and spokesman for Samuel Gompers, president, said: "We have denounced both militarism and pacifism. We understand the designs of the militarists, who would take advantage of every opportunity to promote and feed the war spirit. We likewise understand the designs of the pacifists, who would disarm America first and other nations later. Most of them now prefer to disarm all nations except Soviet Russia, so that dictators of Moscow may find easier their road to aid their dictatorship."

"We believe, with Mr. Gompers, that there is something too craven for words about those who snort at the burden of the price of freedom. We are confident that a great deal of the criticism is insincere, a part of the world-wide organized pacifist propaganda and hostile to American democracy."

"Defense day, itself, is a matter of law and we think most labor men will feel that our military establishments participate properly in the exercises and our military establishments is not large."

"It is composed of Americans who are just like the rest of us in their love of freedom and their love of their country."

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 5.—Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith in the Chicago and Lieutenant Eric Nelson, in the New Orleans, arrived here on the Iceland lap of their round the world flight at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon. Both planes landed on the waters of the inland harbors, making fine landings. The two pilots, with their mechanics, were feeling well and their machines were in good condition.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The American round the world fliers have been sighted at Reykjavik, Iceland, according to a news agency report.

HORNAFJORD, Iceland, Aug. 5.—The American army airplanes, on their world flight, hopped off from here at 9:15 o'clock this morning for Reykjavik, on the west coast of Iceland. The United States cruiser Raleigh, which has been on station here, attending the fliers, proceeded to sea with her destination probably Reykjavik, where Lieutenant Smith, the flight commander, will decide upon the further plans for the flight.

In the get-away the Chicago, with Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Arnold, his mechanic, took the air first. Lieutenant Nelson and Lieutenant Harding, in the New Orleans, followed a moment later. They circled the harbor for a moment, waved farewells and then headed along the Iceland coast toward their destination.

It was the best day since the Raleigh arrived and the sun was shining brightly over the glaciers and no trace of fog. From the north came a stiff breeze, which, it was felt, might somewhat impede the progress of the planes, but the reports from the destroyers stationed along the route indicate visibility good, with a general calm sea.

Dry Creek Declared To Be Menace To Health
Of Twin Cities

Led by Dr. H. C. McRee, Morgan County health officer, and assisted by members of the county health unit, the anti-malaria campaign is at the height in Morgan County, as it is supposed to be throughout the entire state. The plan of the state board of health is to fight intensively the "Anopheles" mosquito malaria carrier, from June 1 to October 1.

Health authorities stated that it was held as positively true by scientists that the mosquito is the active agent that keeps malaria "on the map" and that with the destruction of that mosquito malaria will be destroyed.

The first and also the final plan of attack on the mosquito except the regular defensive tactics such as screening against him, is to dry-up his habitats, according to Walter Rountree, one of Dr. McRee's assistants.

"We want all standing water 'destroyed,'" said Mr. Rountree, "from that in a tomato can in a back yard to the big old runs of the Tennessee river. But where we cannot drain away the living quarters of the mosquitos, on account of lack of funds and enough public interest in our warfare, we propose to have the pests eaten by 'minnows,' and to poison the pests with Paris green."

Mr. Rountree said about 2,000 minnows had been used in Morgan County to date in the anti-malaria warfare. He said that a few, three or four minnows were sufficient for old wells and old cisterns, 25,000 gallons of the Paris green poison has been used to date, and much territory drained of standing water.

At present, Dry Creek, that Jonah stream for the Twin Cities, remains undrained, stated Mr. Rountree, but he is stocking it with anti-malaria minnows and covering its waters with Paris green.

Mr. Rountree said that Dry Creek and the malaria it harbors, is a distinct menace to the health of the people of this community, to say nothing of its unsightly appearance during he rainy seasons.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS
TO BE COMBINED

Public school promoters at Flint, just south of the Twin Cities, and people in the Brothers neighborhood, west from Flint, and also in the Hutson neighborhood, east from Flint, are planning to combine their school districts and have students of the higher grades taught at Flint this winter from all three districts.

A bridge is to be built over the Flint Creek near the old Pisgah church, which will open up new school territory and a new pike road will be completed by winter from Flint out into the brothers school district.

It is planned to put on a school truck when school time comes and transport students into Flint, where a handsome large school building was completed last year.

A meeting was held last week end at Flint presided over by Charles Layman of Flint, when the idea of combining the three school districts mentioned was discussed with enthusiastic interest. The principal address was by Dr. James D. Hunter, pastor of the Central Methodist church of Albany.

STREET CLASH

(Associated Press)
NILES, Ohio, Aug. 5.—Four persons are to face charges today as a result of arrests in connection with street clashes between several hundred supposed members of the Knights of the Flaming Circle and the same number of alleged Ku Klux Klan members here last night.

While no one is said to have been injured seriously, a score are reported to have been bruised and beaten.

By Friday

(Associated Press)
LONDON, Aug. 5.—Premier McDonald presiding at a session of the inter-allied conference, at noon today formally handed to the German delegation the protocol, embodying the program of the conference for putting the Dawes reparation report into effect.

He asked the Germans to study the report and be ready to express their opinions tomorrow. The Premier said he wanted to bring the conference to an end by Friday night. The session, which was held at the Premier's official residence in Downing street, lasted but 6 minutes and was opened by a welcoming address, delivered by Mr. McDonald.

The German delegates, headed by Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann and Finance Minister Luther arrived in London at 8:30 a. m., fully prepared prepared for the meeting, having familiarized themselves with the action of the conference committee while en route from Berlin.

They were accompanied from Harwich by the German ambassador in London.

Replying to Mr. McDonald's welcome, Chancellor Marx said the German government had accepted the Dawes plan and was putting through the necessary legislation to make it effective. The German representatives hoped to maintain the friendly spirit of the original experts and hoped the allies would do the same.

The first meeting of the Germans with the delegates of the inter-allied conference was strictly formal.

HEALEY CONTINUES
ON WITNESS STAND

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Dr. William Healey of Boston, Mass., testifying for the defense at the hearing to determine punishment for Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., for kidnapping and murdering Robert Franks, testified today that the crime was the direct result of Loeb's diseased motivation and that after the observation of the youths in the courtroom had confirmed his opinion from examination that they were mentally diseased.

Cross examination of Dr. Healey began by Robert E. Crowe state attorney, seeking to bring out the basis of a childish compact between Loeb and Leopold and hearing upon suggestion of the defense became silent. The witness testified in a low voice, only for the court and the stenographers.

The matter of which boy struck the fatal blow remained the puzzle of the trial. When Dr. Healey on cross examination, after a 15 minute reference to his notes of examination, said he had not been told which killed the Franks boy and that he did not know.

A DAILY PRAYER.—Give us courage, we pray Thee to endure the cross and to despise the pain it may cause, looking ever unto Christ, the author and finisher of our faith.

There doesn't seem to be very much peace about the National Defense day's peace program.

A period of prosperity will doubtless follow acceptance of the Dawes commission agreement—but just how long thereafter.

W. Hohenzollern, a rural resident, now living in Holland, says all was lost and nothing gained in the World war. That ought to settle the matter.

Resisting street car fare increase with the use of money is the novel plan of a Baltimore resident.
He opposes the increase and asks patrons to supply themselves with dollar bills, always offering a dollar to the conductor. The matter of change would be rather inconvenient for the traction magnates, the protestor believes.

It took 22 years for the law to lay its hands on Olliver Cameron. Nearly a quarter of a century ago Cameron thought he killed a man in Birmingham. During the years he wandered about over the face of the globe, successfully dodging the law, but failing to dodge the accusations of his conscience. Two weeks ago in Portland, Ore., Cameron sought solace in a watery grave, but was rescued. He confessed that he "killed a man." He was returned to Birmingham, but the man he thought he had killed is still alive.
"What a relief it is," Cameron was quoted as saying as he entered the cell.

Not to indicate that local capitalists are not using their money enough, or to even seem to criticize, the following is taken from the Farm Bureau News as quoted from an Andalusia paper:

"Andalusia is not waiting for dissatisfied New Englanders to come here and bring their cotton mills. Our people are building two-with local capital. That is the Andalusia spirit translated into action." Whether we can go and do likewise or not, it never hurts to see what others are doing, as the rooster is reported to have said when he showed his layers a number of ostrich eggs.

It does not follow because other communities are doing certain things, that this community should go and attempt to do likewise. The local needs and the local ability to meet them should be the determining factors. Just at this time one of the real local needs, and one easily satisfied is the opening of a thoroughfare to one ferry on the Tennessee river that will take the tourists through the Twin Cities instead of close to a mile to the east of them as is now the case.
The cities need the tourists and the tourists need the cities. Why not all hands move, for one ferry landing and one street or streets for the tourists?

Membership receipts for 1922 in the farm bureau of Alabama were $31,710 while for 1923, the membership dues amounted to $63,045, a gain of almost 100 per cent. This record is gratifying.
It indicates that the farmers are determined to go at their business in a business way. The membership of the bureau in Alabama is now 22,600, according to the recent report of its president, E. A. O'Neal. Both Mr. O'Neal and the vice president of the bureau, John R. Witt, of Belle Mina, are Tennessee Valley men. The people of this section are proud of the service they are rendering the entire state. Sixty-two of the sixty-seven counties of the state have bureaus. The counties to organize lately are Crenshaw, Marengo, Coffee and Jackson.

Three co-operative selling organizations have been set up by the bureau, the cotton association, the hay association and the poultry dealers association. Taxes, co-operative buying, fertilizers, soil building, live stock transportation, legislation, agricultural education and publicity are some of the departments of the bureau.

Speaking with evident enthusiasm, in his annual report President O'Neal says:

Agriculture is the biggest business in Alabama. Eighty per cent of our people are engaged in it. Our ambition is to place it on a basis with other industry in proportion to its importance.

From the beginning we have realized that the farm bureau is a great service organization. Picture if you can 23,000 leading Alabama farmers in 62 counties working as a unit, as one great team, for constructive aims and you will get a vision of what the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation is. You will be able to appreciate more fully its power, and what it is trying to do.

And while I am referring to its power may I suggest that we never abuse it. It is ours to improve; to build; to develop; to transact business; to speak for ourselves; to get knowledge; to go forward with a great constructive program of work which will benefit all. We have become one among the ten largest businesses in Alabama.

It is seen that a great deal of power is vested in the bureau in Alabama. It is well Mr. O'Neal utters a word of caution concerning the uses of that power, as past history shows that power is an exceeding dangerous thing for organizations as well as for individuals.

Those who secretly hoped differences would arise between John W. Davis and Charles W.
Bryan will not be expected to relish the hearty endorsement Mr. Davis has given to Mr. Bryan's stand against industrial mobilization.

Mr. Davis draws a distinction between practice in the army and the whole population turning out for what is termed "mobilization day."

It would prove boresome and unpleasant to most busy Americans to join in anything that smacks of power display. Americans may like to show off what they can do in a constructive way, but the least seen, said and done about destructive practices such as war, expresses the attitude of the rank and file of the American people. It was doubtless an ill wisher for the Davis Bryan ticket who started the report that Davis was opposed to Bryan's stand against "mobilization day." Mr.
Davis' formal statement against the industrial forces of the country being mobilized begins with a reference to his surprise at the claim that he opposes Bryan's stand.

"On the contrary" the Davis statement says:
"I think that the view expressed by the governor of Nebraska to the effect that there is no necessity at this time to encourage civilians to leave their occupations for the purpose of engaging in what would only be a military demonstration without any practical educational effects, is entirely sound.

"It is one thing to keep the military organizations of the country in adequate practice; it is quite another to encourage demonstrations which can be nothing else at a time when every energy should be bent getting the world back to peace and work, calming the prejudices and passions growing out of the World War and encouraging fruitful trade and commerce. In all these America should take the lead."

The attitude of Americans against a warlike nation is one of pity and deep concern. It was such a feeling that prompted President Wilson and other leaders of his day to take to heart the German threat. Only after it appeared that the people generally were backing the German Imperial government, even people of Fatherland decent in this country, realized what a serious menace the world war was destined to be. Mr.
Davis advises rightly when he says that the people should not be disturbed in their peaceful pursuits, he knowing well that if once the spirit of militarism gets possession in this country a destructive war beside which the world war just passed would be a mild affair. The Republicans are on the defensive good and proper and they will be more and more on the defensive the more their spokesmen advocate "mobilization day."

YOUR HEALTH

How You May Give Relief in Strychnine Poisoning

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY persons are poisoned through the steady use of some drug or even through the occasional use of a certain drug. More than this, one person may be cured of disease by taking a drug while another person may be poisoned by taking the same drug just once.

Strychnine is one of the drugs that too commonly produces poisoning.
The symptoms of this form of poisoning are very characteristic in every case. Whether the onset is sudden or gradual makes little or no difference in the appearance of the symptoms.

There may be a convulsion, or its beginning may be marked by sudden numbness. First of the limbs and gradually passing over the entire body. Then the muscles become rigid, the throat is con-stricted, there are twitches of the body—all in rapid succession.

One of the unusual things about strychnine poisoning is the fact that all the sense organs are more keenly active than under normal conditions. The mind is clear, the hearing is exceptionally acute, the eyeballs protrude, the jaw becomes fixed, there is frothing at the mouth and the convulsions appear at regular intervals.

As the acute stage of the poisoning passes, the symptoms are not unlike those of influenza. There are great prostrations, chills, cold sweats and even slight convulsions or convulsive twitching which continues for a long time.

Whatever else you do if you have a case of strychnine poisoning to treat you must reassure the patient. They are always very susceptible to the fear of death and must be encouraged that recovery will be rapid if simple instructions are followed out.

In every case of poisoning the first thing to do is to get out of the stomach and system all the poison possible. The stomach must be washed out at once. Either a stomach pump should be used or large quantities of two per cent sodium acid solution should be given.

Besides these things absolute quiet, a darkened room; no food for at least twenty-four hours and then only liquids are essential.
A cathartic given after the stomach has been emptied will help to promote recovery.

DR. COPELAND

No matter what kind of poisoning a person may have, the first thing to do is to notify your own doctor and have him give orders for treatment and in the event of special treatment to be ready to administer it himself.

Moulton News

The death of Mrs. Mattie C. Young widow of the late R. M. Young, occured in Moulton, Friday afternoon and interment at the Landersville cemetery seven miles west of Moulton took place Saturday noon following services in the church of Christ building near the cemetery. The services were conducted by I. B. Bradley, of Dixon, Tenn. Mrs. Young was born in Mississippi on October 20, 1857, and had lived until her next birthday would have been sixty-seven years of age. A woman of strong and noble Christian character she had lived the greater part of her forty-five years of married life as a faithful and devoted member of the church of Christ. From early childhood her home was in Franklin County and this, Lawrence county, near Mount Hope, eight or ten years ago the family moved to Moulton.

Four or more weeks ago, Mrs.
Young had an attack of pneumonia and was thought to be improving until early in the week she had a stroke of paralysis. Mrs. Young leaves a son, Bluit Young, of Mount Hope, and two daughters, Misses Ethel and Maggie Young of Moulton, the latter being the art teacher in the county high school. Her sister, Mrs. Oscar Sargent and her husband, of Jacksonville, Alabama and her niece with her husband, Dr. Lawrence of Jacksonville, were present with other members of the family during her last hours.

Circuit court convenes in Moulton Monday for a long session predicted to extend well into the fourth week. The spring session of the court was postponed and cases have been carried over in some instances for as long as eighteen months to two years.

H. George Watson of the editorial staff of one of the larger Birmingham dailies is spending a two weeks vacation with his parents just east of Moulton. His visits home are always welcome to the many friends of his school days about Moulton.

Heavy rains Thursday evening and the greater part of Friday blessed the thirsty fields of corn and cotton and the dying vegetables in many a family garden. The cotton prospect is good but corn conditions in Lawrence county at present are about as unpromising as it has been in many years.

School census enumerators have been busy in Lawrence county getting the school population during the month of July. This is a requirement of the law and is done in even numbered years. It does not appear that there will be as much increase if any, in the number of school age over that of two years ago.

A Pointer on Tobacco—

The slower a tobacco burns, the cooler it smokes. Also the longer it lasts. This slow burning is due to the "cut". Granger is "rough cut" to smoke slow and cool—cut for pipes, not cigarettes. And Wellman's famous old secret method produces richer

Season's Newest Songs Influenced By Democratic Convention

HELEN SHIPMAN

"Sidewalks of New York" And "Paradise Alley" Chosen By Delegates For Spotlight

New York City.—The Democratic Convention has started a strange new song cycle. During the long sessions, the band played the "Sidewalks of New York," "Annie Rooney" and other old-time favorites so persistently that before they knew it, the delegates were whistling and humming the catchy melodies.

Not only that, but when the visitors went to the theater, they found that in line with the convention had, New York was having a regular epidemic of songs glorifying New York's favorite streets. Thus "Paradise Alley" was added to the repertoire which they took home. And before they left, Helen Shipman and Arthur Murray, famous creators of dance steps, arranged a "Paradise Alley" fox-trot in their honor.

AMUSEMENTS

I have never directed a picture in which the players worked so easily and contributed so much to assist me. Miss Frederic, in my opinion, is the finest screen star of the day. I know of no actress who so quickly "gets into" the scenes and gives so much to the camera. Mr. Tellegen's long career as an actor and his schooling on the stage in Paris is well known. He applies to his work before the camera the subtle artistry that so marks the continental actor. Leslie Austen received his early training in England, and while his film experience has been somewhat limited on account of his appearance on Broadway in stage productions I found him most easy to direct.

I have in the cast a young woman whom I consider one of the finds of the year, Helena D'Algy. She is a Spanish girl who played in opera throughout South America. I saw her at the "Follies" and after considering many candidates for the part I selected her as the ideal woman for Felecia, the girl who breaks the heart of Lechmere, played by Mr. Tellegen. "Let Not Man Put Asunder" will be shown at the Princess theater on Wednesday and Thursday.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Youthful Crepe de Chine Sports Frock.

GABY and I went dress-shopping this morning. "It's the time of year when one can often pick up a lovely frock at a reduced price," Gaby informed me, as if I didn't have a weather eye out for bargains at all times of the year. "Of course, it's the sale season," I answered. "Haven't I been watching the shop windows and the papers like any old bargain-hunter?" "What are you looking for?" Gaby asked.

"Oh, I'm always ready to buy a perfectly adorable dress when I can find one as cheap as I can make it," I answered nonchalantly.

"Well, it's seldom you can find a dress as good as one you can make yourself for the same price," Gaby remarked wisely. "But let's see what we can do," I returned, as I led her into a little shop I know in one of the exclusive shopping districts. We looked at a number of pretty dresses and priced one after the other.

"They are all still well beyond the reach of my pocketbook," Gaby whispered to me. "Mine, too," I returned. "Just at this moment the shopkeeper brought out a dress as cool and dainty as any I have seen this season. 'It's a little navy and white striped crepe de chine is one of the smartest things I've had in the shop lately,' she assured us. 'I was interested immediately, for I think striped materials are always attractive. 'How much is it?' I asked. She named a ridiculously low figure for such a pretty frock, and I must have shown my surprise, for she said: 'It would be much more, but that is the last one I have of its kind and I must make room for new stock.' The dress was as simple and smart as could be, and I knew immediately that I'd have to have it if Gaby didn't want it for herself. This question was soon decided, for she held it up to herself and declared it was much too short. She whispered to me: 'You buy it and I'll copy it in some other material.' 'That will be easy,' I whispered back. I tried the dress on and we saw that it was simply a straight frock with an apron tied about the waist. A full of sheer white organdie edged in blue gave a dainty finish to the kimono blouse. 'I'll copy it in yellow and white striped crepe de chine,' Gaby said, as she held it up to herself and declared it was much too short. I had the dress under my arm in a pretty flowered box.

REV. J. W. BOSWELL
DIES IN TENNESSEE

Rev. John W. Boswell, father of W. F. Boswell of Decatur, and for many years editor of various church publications in the south, died yesterday late at Cedar Hill, Tenn. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at the Kendrick church, Nashville, Tenn., and interment will be made there.

Rev. Boswell was 84 years of age. He had visited his son here about three weeks ago. He appeared to be in good health, but about one week ago, he became ill of pneumonia and in view of his advanced age, medical skill was unable to bring him back to normal health.

W. F. Boswell left today for Nashville to attend his father's funeral.

'Y' WILL CONDUCT
SWIMMING CLASS

The local Y. M. C. A. will conduct the second school of free swimming instructions for boys who do not know how to swim. The first lesson will be given Wednesday, August 6, at 10:30 a. m. Boys between the age of eight and seventeen are to be given the benefit of free swimming instructions. All boys of the Twin Cities are urged to take advantage of these lessons. During the first series of swimming instructions over sixty boys of the Twin Cities were taught to swim under the direction of Boys Work Director Robert D. Edwards of the "Y".

Because so many boys took advantage of the first series of free swims Mr. Edwards decided to give to other boys of the community a chance to learn how to swim.

He will be assisted by S. E. Arvidson, the new physical director at the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Arvidson has just taken a special course in swimming instruction under Dean Harry W. Long of Southern Summer School of Y. M. C. A. and W. E. Beckett, director of physical education of the Washington City, Y. M. C. A. Every precaution will be taken to forestall danger to health and safety in this most enjoyable and healthful activity.

The pool is treated with chlorinated lime and kept in a high state of purification.

Water sport develops grace, suppleness and lung capacity and furnish the best all around exercise yet discovered. Parents of all boys in the Twin Cities were urged to send their sons to the Y. M. C. A. to enroll in these free swimming instruction classes. Cards are ready for the boys and they were invited to see Secretary Edwards Tuesday to enroll.

Why Lillian First Astonished and Then Puzzled Madge.

THERE was something so imperative in Mrs. Marks's manner when she delivered Lillian's message to me, that I found myself moving as swiftly in answer to it as she had done in her rush to her own apartment. I found Lillian, all traces of fatigue gone, seated before the telephone.

"No, no," she was saying. "I don't want one with a cuff, but one with two long braids. Negligee, breakfast-in-bed, that sort of thing. No, No, silky black, blue black! Have you one? Can you get one? Not to-morrow. To-night! Within an hour! If it's in the city I won't take any chances on it. All right. Telephone me the minute you find out."

She hung up the receiver, and turned to me with the sparkle in her eyes and the slight flush on her cheek that always marked her enthusiastic entrance into some difficult piece of work. I am afraid I was guilty of an amazed stare, not only at her quick recovery from the state of almost collapse in which I had left her, but at the oddity of the request she just had made over the telephone. She met my astonished stare, however, with her best weapon for my pique, a merry little laugh.

"About ready to telephone the sympathetic ward at Bellevue, old dear?" she asked. "I don't blame you. That dose I was emitting surely must have sounded like De Quincey. I'll explain it all to you when we have time. Just now we've got something else on our hands. Do you know of any way of awaking that chimpanzee in the bedroom without her screaming in fright at finding herself in strange surroundings?"

Lillian's Swiftly Plans.

The question, "Why awaken Mamie at all?" rose to my lips, but I instantly suppressed it, although the thermometer of my curiosity was mounting to fever heat. But that Lillian had some imperative reason for her bizarre actions, I was certain, and I schooled my voice to a casual rejoinder.

"Her mother probably pulls her out of bed by the hair and dumps her on the floor. So I don't think you need fear to shake her awake."

"I'm not worrying over her possible hurt feelings," Lillian retorted grimly, "but I don't want her letting out a yell. I hate to bother you, but—she's more used to you than to me, and seeing you when she opens her eyes might startle her less than if my phiz were bending over her."

"I'll do my best," I said, starting out of bed by the hair and dumping her on the floor. So I don't think you need fear to shake her awake."

DON'T WAIT

Take advantage of an Albany citizen's experience.

When the back begins to ache.

Don't wait until backache becomes chronic.

Till kidney troubles develop.

Till urinary troubles destroy night's rest.

Profit by an Albany citizen's experience.

Mrs. W. S. Stevens, 703 Fourth avenue, West, says: "When I bent or straightened, I thought my back would break. Sharp pains cut into me and a little housework tired me out. I became weak and felt so miserable. I gave up a lot of my work. My kidneys acted too freely, but Doan's Pills proved to be the remedy I needed. I was rid of the trouble after using Doan's".

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Stevens had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv't.
